Cone Employees Have Good Reasons For Gifts To Community Chest

With the beginning of the 1954 drive for Community Chest funds at Cone Mills today, these comments were heard throughout the plants and offices.

Mrs. Ethel Spivey of White Oak Plant Weaving Department: "It makes for a better city and community to have an agency such as the Community Chest. It can be a success only if we as citizens support it with our contributions whether they be large or small."

J. O. Morphis, Pay Roll Department: "Our contribution to the Chest is an expression of love to aid our less fortunate neighbor."

Mrs. Leola Jones, Proximity Plant Weaving Department: "My husband and I give to the Community Chest as a means of sharing a portion of our earnings with others who are less fortunate than we." In helping others through the Community Chest, you can do so without embarrassing those in need and without publicity."

Miss Mary Louise Knight, Main Office: "Support of the Community Chest is expression of your desire to make Greensboro a better place in which to live."

Mrs. Lois Brown, Cone Print Shop: "I think the Community Chest slogan, 'Give 'til it Helps!' is really a good one and should be observed."

James Morrison, Proximity Plant Spinning Room: "I give to the Community Chest because it helps so many good causes. I give because it is a means of sharing."

Mrs. Hazel K. Owens, Finishing Department of White Oak Plant: "Although I have been fortunate in not having to call on the Community Chest for help, I have heard of numerous people who have used their services in time of need. My sons used the facilities of the USO while in service, an agency supported by the Community Chest."

Mrs. Mildred Hall, Main Office: "Your donation to the Community Chest is an indication of your interest in community betterment."

Robert Donnell, White Oak Cotton Warehouse: "I give to help all the Red Feather Agencies but most of all to help provide food and medical service that some folks would never get but for our donations."

Richard McCann, Finishing Department, Proximity Plant: "I give to the Community Chest because I think it is a good organization dedicated to help people. It helps organizations that I enjoy. I give also in order to help those who are in need."

Woodrow Carruthers, Purchasing Department head: "I have always considered a contribution to the Community Chest as a good investment in the present and the future of our city."

Mrs. Jacqueline Wheeler, Revolution Flannel Plant Weaving Department: "I am sure that the Community Chest is a good thing, because I know of a lot of people who have gotten help from it."

In My Opinion . . .

By U.S. Senator Margaret Chase Smith

In my opinion, the Community Chest is a keystone in the well-being and the preservation of the community. It lives up to its name. It is a chest in which the very essence of the goodness of the community is stored every year—and from which that goodness is distributed throughout the year to the less fortunate of the community.

The Community Chest is actually a builder of the community for its works for the betterment and the greater happiness of the community. Show me a happy community and I'll show you a place where future leaders of our country are born and bred.

But a contribution to the Community Chest is not completely charitable. It is actually one of the wisest investments that the contributor could ever make. It is an investment in the community's well-being — it is an investment which pays dividends in happiness for the community.

Our nation is only as strong as its communities. For our nation is built upon the communities. Perhaps it is obvious, but I think that it is well for us to pause a little and see just what makes up our nation.

Actually the basic unit of government, formal or informal, official or unofficial, is the family. For there are rules by which a family lives. The next step in the basic structure of our government is the grouping of families. On the farms, this grouping is farther apart than in the towns. But whether in the country, on the farm, or in the towns, the grouping of the families in close proximity to each other is the creation of the community.

In turn the grouping of the communities in an area produces the county organization of government—the counties grouped together form the state government — and the states federated together have produced our Federal or National Government.

Thus, the very backbone of our Government is the family in the community. And it is the objective of the Community Chest to keep families of the community healthy and happy.

The Community Chest is one of the safeguards against too much Government control of our personal and daily lives. It provides a means for taking care of ourselves and our neighobrs instead of looking to our Government to do the job. It is the American creed that much of our community life must remain free of governmental control and influence. We believe in individual independence as much as possible and so the Community

Ministers Elect Officers For Year

The first fall meeting of the Textile Ministerial Association and annual election of officers was held at the Proximity Y.M.C.A., Wednesday, October 13. Rev. Harold Loman, pastor of the Howard Chapel Christian Church, was elected president, succeeding the Rev. John Edwards of Eller Memorial Baptist Church, who was injured in an automobile accident and is now in Moses Cone Memorial Hospital. Rev. C. L. Stout, of Second Pilgrim Holiness Church, was elected vice president, and Rev. E. L. Mabry, of Newlyn Street Methodist Church, secretary and treasurer.

L. P. McLendon, Jr., a member of the speakers' bureau of the Community Chest, spoke to the association in the interest of the Community Chest Drive for $300,469.40, advising the ministers that their congregations would be appraised of the community needs, and pointing out that three out of four in this community benefit from our Greater Community Chest Drive. He further pointed out that the Community Chest budget was screened for actual needs, and that this was a most worthy objective, and that all citizens are being given an opportunity to give, and "Give until it helps." The speaker further spoke on how the Christian community and Christian Church should take the leadership in informing the public of the services of the 16 Red Feather Agencies of the Community Chest. He gave supporting evidence that such a Community Chest could not be advantageously administered from a Federal or State level because of the local situation in every com-

Community Chest Drive Starts Today

Seven meetings were held this week at Cone Mills which included 250 solicitors in all for the Community Chest campaign which begins here today and continues through October 29. The solicitors, made up of supervisors and employees in the plants and offices received information concerning the drive and were given the opportunity to ask questions.

This year more employees are urged to use the pay roll deduction plan since it is generally understood that it is more convenient to make a contribution over a period of time.

"If each department within the plants and offices would set as its objective collections as good or better than last year's, Cone Mills will be able to meet its goal," stated George Hamer, heading the campaign.

Every employee will receive a pledge card for the Community Chest and a copy of the brochure, "What's Missing?"

Here are some Red Feather facts:

The 1955 Community Chest campaign goal includes no salary increases for any Community Chest or Chest Agency personnel.

If you live outside the city but work in Greensboro, you are eligible for Red Feather agency benefits.

The cost of conducting your Community Chest campaign, which combines 15 drives in one, is only 3 cents out of each dollar contributed.

Seventy-five percent of the cost of both the Boy Scout and the Girl Scout programs in Rural Guilford County is paid from funds contributed to the Greensboro Community Chest.

The Community Chest spends no money for meals. All meals are "Dutch Treat."

If you know, or have heard of a person who was unable to receive help from a chest agency, write out the details and send this information to chest headquarters. In almost every instance the misunderstanding can be cleared up when the facts are reviewed.

Campaign solicitors receive absolutely no pay. Over 3,000 volunteers in Greensboro last year devoted days and weeks to make our community a better place in which to live nd work. They gave their time and energy as well at their money to the chest . . . and received not one cent of pay.

The Department of Public Welfare is not a part of the Community Chest. Its program is supported from your tax dollar.

Community Chest agencies do not duplicate the services available through tax supported agencies of public health and public welfare. Every effort is made to avoid duplication of any service rendered by any other group.

Chest dollars are raised, collected and spent by volunteer citizens who give their time and service on the Budget and Finance Committees, the Board of the Chest, and the boards of the agencies. Every dollar received and spent is audited annually.

The campaign goal is not just a round figure pulled "out of the hat." It was determined after weeks of careful review and study not only by the agencies themselves but also the Chest Budget Committee, and approved by your Community Chest Board of Directors. Hundreds of local citizens participated in setting the goal.

White Oak Y's Men Plan Big Carnival

Annual Halloween carnival will be held at White Oak YMCA Saturday evening, October 30. White Oak Y's Men, sponsors of the event, promise that this will be the biggest carnival yet staged there.

All children are asked to make a note of the date and to bring their parents with them to the event.

Parents are reminded that if they want their children to have a safe, happy and entertaining Halloween, they should bring or send them to the carnival.

The driver is safer when the roads are dry and the roads are safer when the driver is dry.

WHO SAID DROUGHT?—The above picture, made during the Greensboro session with Hurricane Hazel last Friday gives a small indication of the amount of water that descended in this area after several weeks of a dangerous water shortage. This is a scene around the White Oak warehouses.

UNDER A SHADY OAK—These five cars parked in the shade of a big oak at White Oak were all but submerged under the water that fell here last Friday. Owners probably were saving buckets of bath water with which to revive their flowers back home. The torrential downpour ended the 15-gallons of water per person ration in the city.

Dr. Bowman To Address Safety Council Here

Dr. Neal Bowman, nationally known speaker from Manasquan, New Jersey, will discuss "The Human Side of Safety," when the Central Piedmont Safety Council holds its fall meeting at the Proximity branch of the Cone Memorial YMCA next Thursday, October 28. Dr. Bowman, who is a staff speaker for the National Association of Manufacturers, spoke to the Statewide Safety Conference inRaleigh last May and was so well received that he was asked to return to North Carolina to address both Piedmont Councils. He will speak to the Southern Piedmont group on Wednesday at Kannapolis.

As hosts, Cone Mills will provide refreshments for the Council as well as the speaker and the meeting place Each Cone plant is being asked to have a large delegation present both to hear Dr. Bowman and to help in welcoming visitors from other industries in the nine county Central Piedmont area.

Pete S. Lea, personnel director for the United Furniture Corporation of Lexington will preside as chairman of the Central Piedmont group. Raymond Kincaid, assistant superintendent of Proximity Plant, will offer the invocation.

A very brief business meeting will be held but most of the program will be devoted to the speaker who comes to this part of the country especially to speak at these two safety meetings. Those who have heard Dr. Bowman say that he is one of the most entertaining they have ever heard. He is able to combine a great deal of wit and humor with a message that is both inspiring and timely.

Invitations to attend the meeting are being sent to a number of companies and individuals in the Greensboro area. All persons interested in safety are welcome to attend, and Cone Mills employees especially are urged to be present.

TO GO OVERSEAS—A-1c James W. Stroud, Jr., son of Mrs. Lillian M. Stroud of 90 Shives Street, Salisbury, has completed a 21-day leave there with his family and is reporting to Alexander Air Force Base, La., for overseas duty in Italy. Airman Stroud enlisted in the Air Force in July of this year. He had four years service in the U. S. Navy when he served in the Pacific. He is married to the former Miss Margaret Heck of Salisbury and they have one child, Karen. Mrs. Stroud will remain in Salisbury during Airman Stroud's stay overseas.

More Than A Local Problem

When that gal Hazel went on a rampage last week, she certainly played havoc with South Carolina and North Carolina to say nothing of the regions south and north of here.

At the same time she was bringing death, suffering, anquish and material destruction, she gave support to the theory that even a bad wind brings somebody some good. The water crisis in Greensboro and this area was terminated.

We feel quite sure that our engineers and municipal, county and state leaders will not permit the passing of that acute crisis to slow them up in giving adequate consideration to the overall water situation in this section of North Carolina for the distant future as well as the nearby future.

Only too often when the pressure of a crisis passes, people are apt to forget and not plan sufficiently to avoid another crisis of the same nature which might occur in the future.

The responsibility that rests upon local officials is not theirs alone. Certainly they should not shirk their duties or fail to plan properly for the years to come, but the problem of water is not confined to Greensboro or to the nearby vicinity. The water problem is a statewide problem and one that should be recognized as such by state officials.

LISTEN AMERICANS!

... by Dr. George S. Benson

DIRECTOR - NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM
Searcy, Arkansas

For a great many years I have been advocating the development of a course in American citizenship for every school in the nation. This need, it seems to me, is a challenge to the parents and the school people in every district in the country. Here are some of the educational goals which should be sought in such a course:

1. An understanding by every school child of the Christian origin and foundation of the American way of life. God's laws were acknowledged as supreme and were made the foundation for our social, economic and political order.

2. An understanding of the structure of the unique American system of government, and its benefits. The Declaration of Independence was a people's defiance of an autocratic government which denied individual freedom. The United States Constitution welded the freedom philosophy into an instrument of government, the first genuine Republic and the only Republic of its kind on earth.

3. An understanding of the structure of the unique American economic system. Our economic system is called capilalism. It is founded on the right of individual citizens to own property. The basic need for private ownership, the wholesome power of the profit motive, the spur of competition in a free market, and the character-building influence of self-reliance—these are the lessons available in the true history of America.

4. An understanding of the relative social, political and economic advantages of the American system over any other system known. The basic advantages, stated briefly, are: the greatest degree of freedom given any people in the world; the greatest degree of prosperity achieved by any people in the world; the greatest opportunity for economic progress and spiritual happiness enjoyed by any people in the world. These are not abstract generalities; they are relative advantages that can be cited and proved in specific detail and they make fascinating subject matter for classroom study and discussion.

Let me urge parents who are reading this column to contact the school people in their community—NOW!—and work with them this school year on the development of such a course. There is nothing you could do of greater importance to the future of America.

Search for a Vaccine

Since 1882 when the tubercle bacillus — the germ that causes tuberculosis—was discovered, men have been searching for a vaccine to make people immune to TB. In other diseases such as diphtheria and typhoid the discovery of the germ led to the discovery of fairly satisfactory methods of creating artificial resistance to infection. But tuberculosis has proved a harder nut to crack.

A tremendous amount of investigation by scientists has gone into the search for a vaccine against tuberculosis. The greatest amount of effort has been directed at producing a vaccine from dead tubercle bacilli. Methods used to kill the germ in its tough wax coating are almost beyond belief.

The germs have been boiled, subjected to superheated steam, frozen in liquid air, "puffed" in a vacuum like rice or wheat, starved, suffocated, ground, and squeezed to death in a hydraulic press, subjected to killing doses of ultra-violet light, radium, X-rays, and ultrasonic noise, and treated with a wide variety of antiseptic chemicals and fat solvents. And still the problem has not been solved.

One vaccine, BCG, made from a weakened strain of bovine tubercle bacilli, has definite, but not complete protective power against TB. It is not always able to protect, and when it does we do not know how long the protection will last.

New approaches to the problem of creating immunity to TB are now being studied by research scientists. Nutrition may play an important part in resistance to TB. The body's balance may be another factor. Studies now going on in these fields may some day bring the answer to TB—a means of building up human resistance to the germs so that everyone can be protected from the disease.

Granite News

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Madkins, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Madkins of Hillsboro and John Overcash, son of Mrs. Mary Murray and the late Mr. Overcash of Gibsonville. The wedding took place in Graham on Saturday, October 9 at nine o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Overcash are at home in Gibsonville. John is employed in the machine shop on the first shift.

Miss Hallie Mae Clayton and Mrs. Claude Allen were hostesses to the Thelma Cates Class of the Haw River Methodist Church on Monday evening, October 11. A large group of the members attended the meeting.

Mrs. Horace Brannon had charge of the devotional. She presented an interesting program.

Mrs. Haywood Ray, president of the class, conducted the business session. Final plans were made for the Golden Age Party the class is sponsoring.

The hostesses assisted by Mrs. J. C. Clayton, Mrs. Roy Clayton, and Mrs. Rudy Montgomery, served a party plate with punch.

The Haw River P. T. A. will have a big Halloween party at the school Friday, October 29. Plans are in the making for a big time. The proceeds will be used for the playground that we hope to have someday very soon.

Rankin High School of Greensboro handed the Haw River Indians a heartbreaking defeat on Thursday evening, the score being 7-6. Extra points in football means having the game often.

Carlton Stout and Ray Clayton, Jr., students of Catawba College, spent the past weekend at home.

Mrs. Dace Pearson has returned from a trip to Washington, D. C. where she was called due to the illness of her father, Mr. S. M. Spencer.

Rev. Dwight Jackson, pastor of the Haw River Christian Church, underwent surgery at Duke Hospital the past week.

Mrs. A. J. Poe of Efland was a visitor in Haw River the past week.

Almost 8 million persons have been added to the number employed at civilian jobs in the nine years which have elapsed since the end of World War II. Compared with this long-term growth, the efforts of the economic adjustment which began in mid-1953 are minor in magnitude.

In the early post-war years the number of persons available for civilian jobs increased rapidly. This was partly due to the natural maturing of our population, and partly to the fact that the women and other temporary workers who withdrew from the labor force after the war were more than offset by the men made available through demobilization of our armed forces.

Between 1950 and 1954 the labor force available for civilian jobs increased at a somewhat slower rate. Most of the natural growth in the labor force was absorbed by the post-Korean expansion of the armed services. But the need for production was so great that the number of persons employed increased more rapidly, between 1950 and 1953, than the number of persons available for employment. As a result unemployment was reduced to an average of only 1.5 million persons in 1953—a lower figure than in any other year since 1945.

Despite the increase in unemployment during the first half of 1954, the number of persons employed at civilian jobs was 7.8 million greater than in 1945, and 1.9 million greater than in 1949. This brought civilian employment to a level of 60.6 million persons in the first half of 1954. The civilian labor force in the same period was 64 million persons, and if the armed forces are included the total labor force was 67.4 million.

Something For Nothing?

By Mark C. Schinnerer
Superintendent of Schools, Cleveland, Ohio

The writer of this editorial practices what he preaches. I know because I am well acquainted with him and his career. He has always given at least as much, and usually more, than he expected to receive. He is a stalwart American citizen. It is fortunate for all of us when men like Mark Schinnerer occupy important positions of leadership, especially in education. Dr. Schinnerer is a valued member of the National Advisory Council for Scholastic Magazines.

—John W. Studebaker
Chairman, Editorial Board

This is about economics. This is about the teaching of economics, not directed just to teachers of economics, but to all teachers. It is directed to all teachers because the job that needs to be done cannot be done by just the teachers of economics.

There is a colossal oversupply of people in my country who either never discovered some of the basic principles of economics or think that the economic laws have been repealed. We hear much wailing that the schools have failed in this regard and the cry is for required courses in economics. We have failed—in school and out—but the answer is not in required courses. The answer, in my opinion, lies in a continuous effort to inculcate in children, from kindergarten through high school, some basic and very simple facts.

There are three things which almost anyone can be brought to understand and if these three are ingrained, we can leave the more complicated principles to the experts.

1. You can't get something for nothing. Too many think they can. That is the basis of gambling and most speculation. Giving a higher mark in school than is earned is proving that the student can get something for nothing. That is bad business. When parents urge no homework, they somehow expect something for nothing. One gets out of school work about what he puts into it. Only parasites get something for nothing.

2. You can't spend more than you have and remain solvent. The longer such a system is followed, the more impossible it becomes to keep afloat. Know anyone who trades in a mortgaged car on a new one and has both a newer car and bigger mortgage? The woods are full of such people. It is bad economics. It's something like drug addiction. This applies equally to a person, a business, or a government.

3. You cannot equalize ability by a handicap system. It is wrong to expect as much from a youngster with a low I. Q. as is expected from a youngster with a high I. Q. It is also wrong to set up handicaps so that they come out even. Leave that for the exclusive use of the racing stewards. Competition still has a place in America, thank goodness, and I don't want it any other way.

GOVERNMENT

When did American women first ask to take part in government?

( ) 1776 ( ) 1825 ( ) 1914

In 1776 Mrs. John Adams wrote her husband, "I desire you should remember the ladies, and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors . . . we are determined to ferment a rebellion, and will not hold ourselves bound by laws in which we have no voice or representation."

John Adams replied, "I cannot but laugh . . . We have only the name of masters, and rather than give this up, which would completely subject us to the despotism of the petticoat, I hope General Washington and all our brave heroes would fight."

HISTORY

Who first sailed around the world?

( ) Marco Polo
( ) Ponce de Leon
( ) Fernando Magellan

Magellan of Portugal, fitted out in 1519 with five ships by Spain, sailed through the Straits of Magellan into the South Sea which he renamed the Pacific, arrived at the Philippine Islands in 1521 after many of his men died of starvation. In a fight with natives, Magellan was killed. Finally, in 1522, the last remaining ship, the Victoria, rounded the Cape of Good Hope and with 18 men arrived back in Spain. The adventure that required three years can now be done in about as many days.

MATHEMATICS

Is there an important rule to remember when solving mathematical problems?

( ) Yes ( ) No

Yes—ask yourself, "Is the answer reasonable? Keep the rule in mind when using decimals or fractions. If you multiply 2.5 by 3.4 you know the answer must be somewhere between 6 and 12. If you end up with 85.0, you know at once the decimal point is in the wrong place.

IN MY OPINION . . .

Chest is dedicated to helping the unfortunate individual help himself instead of becoming a ward of the Government, leaning on a crutch of a Government dole, and never learning to stand and walk on his own feet.

But there is a price that we must pay for such independence in the traditional American way. That price is the responsibility of each of us to do our part for our community. The fact that it is not a legal responsibility for which we do not have to answer in no manner relieves us of the responsibility.

It is a moral responsibility—and certainly in some respects a moral responsibility is even more binding on the individual than a legal responsibility.

Such is the story of the Community Chest as I see it. For people of the community, here is a chance to do your part in making your community strong and in doing so to make your nation strong. Make the most of that chance!

Horlick's Pigeons Finish 1st and 2nd

"Black Run" owned by J. N. Horlick, won the Piedmont Racing Pigeon Club's Special Race from Washington, D. C. on October 17, with speed of 1,020.63 yards per minute. In second place was Horlick's "Silk Run" at 1,019.72. Finishing third was "Tid-Bit" owned by Harry Schwartz with speed of 896.43, and following in fourth place was another bird belonging to Schwartz at 889.33. Next, in fifth place was Arnold Tidwell's pigeon with speed of 887.98 yards per minute.

There were 12 birds in the race with only 5 home in the day. Only specially banded birds could be entered in this race. The small entry was due to the heavy losses of special banded birds in previous races.

Next week the club will hold an open race from Washington with many birds competing.
